What about that rain?

Well, we are interested to see that some men are so anxious to plow now-a-days that they will help themselves to plow shares, and go to the trouble to take them off from the plows at that after they have taken the wrenches from another plow. Now that shows an industrious spirit don't it?

Well, we have sold some windmills lately. Geo. Gunderson, W. H. Turner and Dick Tribe last week took out two power mills and one pumping mill.

Jim Tribe took out a JOHN DEERE

STAG PLOW Tuesday.

Oh say are you going to get that new buggy to bring your loved one to the Farmers Celebration, July 1st?

We are going to have a big time. You might get a chance to carry water for the elephant.

Don't forget that we have the JOHN DEERE IRON CLAD and Davenport wagons on hand. For carrying capacity and light draft they can't be beaten.

Our car of binders is in the yard. We hope the crop will be so big that we have to get another car.

FRANK E. McDIARMID, Carlstadt.

The Upset

A noted English parliamentarian tossed back his thick white mane of hair, stroked his white beard and said in a雄伟的声调 to a New York reporter:

"The rise in the world of wages has been greater than the rise in the cost of prices has been greater. We have had progress, but it has been progress in the wrong direction."

A tourist was traveling in your Far West. As he inspected an Indian camp he said to it his cowboy guide:

"Are these Indians progressing?"

"Yes," said the cowboy, taking a fresh chew of tobacco. "Bettcher life they're progressing. All their women are fat and well-fed men now."

As a vermin there is nothing so potent as Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, and it can be given to the most delicate child without fear of injury to the constitution.

Look here, Mr. Editor: I enclose an order for a returnable bottle of Worm as a reforming drinker. You must apologize or I'll sue you paper for libel.

Very well, sir, replied the editor. I'll reflect the statement cheerfully. Til say you haven't reformed.

When the Trouser Doctor

A friend of the family had been induced to testify against his will, as to domestic disturbances in a certain household.

You saw the blows administered—admit counsel?

Did you witness the beginning of the quarrel between Mr. and Mrs. D. I did.

When was it?

Six months ago. Six years ago? How is that possible?

Was a guest at their wedding, said the witness.

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians

Maud—Mr. Alround is a sort of universal genius, isn't he? He is exceedingly clever.

Maud—He is the something of a lawyer and something of a musician. What is his profession?

Al—He is a lawyer; call him a musician and the musicians call him a lawyer.

Famous Comedian

Arthur Roberts, the well-known comedian, in his early days was a humble clerk by day, and at night a low-life ne'er-do-well. His low-life clerks never imagined for one moment that the comedian everyone was talking about was the same boy who sat amongst them. Roberts enjoyed the situation, and perplexed the office by his sudden disappearance. Mr. Roberts' compliments.

Roberts' last in his mind work became so heavy that he had to leave. One of the clever ones ventured to ask if he had got a new evening job. "Yes," he said, "I bring you in much money, laughingly and smilingly, the other day our wages." But Roberts did not think so, and came to the office to get his pay. This work brought him about $200. Then of course, he had to divide the amount that he was no other than the great comedian.

Thirsty at Janes

Twenty minutes after refreshments! Having the conductor as he passed down the aisle, the man with raspberry jam on his chin plucked him by the sleeve. You need not train the train on our account, he said, we are going to eat our rights in the car.

One day little Laura came into the kitchen and found her grandmother shelling peas! After watching her a while, she said, "Grandma, please let my hubbard the beans."

Absent-Minded

Nella—To her sister—My, I'm going to make some lemonade, Mary.

Mary (in a brown study)—The squeaker! Oh, he hasn't arrived yet, but I'm expecting him any minute.

Carlstadt News Says

In the Calgary Albertan crop summary, gleaned from all corners of the province, we find "the only complaint in the country is lack of rain. The farmers are enthusiastic about crop prospects and all things point to an early harvest and by far the most abundant. The reports are the best that could be expected at the present time. Hail is still a liability."

Brooks and Bassano got rain on Monday night. They needed it.

Come on you baseball teams up north. Show up your calibre here on July 1st. Tripoli, Golden West, Blue Grass, Websdale, you're all welcome.

Many of the residents of this portion of the province are completing arrangements to attend the Calgary exhibition in July, and from the information which is received concerning the program arranged for that week, there will be something done all the time. From an exhibition point of view there is assurance of a very large display in all departments. The live stock breeders are preparing their animals for the show ring and the reputation which Alberta has received as a stock country will be again amply demonstrated.

District exhibits and the individual displays made by some of the most successful farmers in province will provide some very keen competitions for the premier honors.

It is to be hoped that this portion of the country will be represented as the constituency that would be derived by having Carlstadt carry off the premier honors would be of incalculable value.

New Elevator for Carlstadt

(Contributed)

What has heretofore been occasionally spoken of as "The Farmer's Dream Elevator" is now more a matter of idle talk. The enterprise has lately received the serious attention of the most active agriculturists of this community to the extent that the proposed branch of "The Alberta Farmers Co-operative Elevator Co. Ltd." of Carlstadt, is almost a certainty.

The farmers of our vicinity are awake to the fact that when the Provincial government offers them so much encouragement and material aid, that they can not afford to be indifferent regarding a matter of so great value to themselves and to the town.

It has been repeatedly stated that Carlstadt and vicinity are progressive enough to support two elevators. The expression has been made by many that Carlstadt needs no enterprise more than the co-operative elevator to stamp it on the map as a busy town, and at the same time make the farmers of the community famous as a body of energetic, businesslike, up-to-date, agriculturists, united in the promotion of what is bound to be one of the greatest industries of the West.

"O.H.M.S."

Tribulations of a Telegraph Operator Who Happily Accepted that Position at Langevin, but was overwhelmed by Postage Stamps.

Did you ever read the story "O.H.M.S." or the Langevin operator. It is well known to the citizens that in the early days, this place was called Langevin. An amusing story was published in the Railroad Man's Magazine, under the heading given above and depicts the trials of the local operator and postmaster here when the town was only a freight car. O.H.M.S. has been running through the last two issues of the News, and this week concludes the story.

stamps, and received many encouraging suggestions from my co-workers on the line, none of which, unfortunately, was practicable.

In a second perusal of the guide-book, I learned that post-offices like Langevin were self-supplying, the postmaster at such an office being directed to purchase his own stamps from the nearest district headquarters. This meant to me a journey to Calgary.

"The question of where to obtain supplies having been solved, a real difficulty arose.

"It was not necessary for me to search my pockets for unspent money. I had been doing so most thoroughly off and on for several days, in the hope that some small bill or coin from my last bank-roll had been overlooked during my carelessness.

"The condition of my finances prohibited the purchase of even the most modest supply of stamps.

"I was up against what seemed a stone wall.

"To make matters worse, I met with a slight mishap that same evening. It may appear funny now, but it did not leave me in a very pleasant frame of mind at the time. In the morning by wire I had ordered five pounds each of bacon and beefsteak from Medicine Hat. The butcher had notified me that my purchase would arrive on the freight train in the evening. Train stopped at Langevin only when it was flagged. I could neither order nor flag a stop, so I stationed myself in the storm doorway of the boxcar, prepared to beat the coyotes to any package that might be thrown off. The conductor stood on the steps of the caboose, also determined to preserve it from them.

"Not seeing me there as I had no lantern, he made a remarkable throw for the open door of my box-car as the train flew by, and the meat would have landed inside had I not been in the way. The package struck me squarely in the chest, knocking the breath from my lungs with such force that it blew the door shut. When I disengaged myself from the oil-vans and broken lanterns some time later, I was still alive, but felt somewhat peevish.

"Wednesday and a cold day arrived at about the same time. The thermometer dropped to forty-six below zero. I began early to prepare the mail-pouch. There was nothing to put into it, but that detracted not a whit the dignity of the ceremony. I examined the bag carefully for holes or tears through which valuables might be lost, if had been there any inside. Having satisfied myself as to its soundness, I locked it with a flourish and went forth quite majestically in the service of the King.

"I had never hung a mail-pouch before, and did not know just how to do it. The frosty atmosphere seemed to have enlivened the mail-crane to unusual activity. It was full of gulls. Its arms flew wildly up and down and refused to have anything to do with the mail-pouch. When I fastened the ring to the top arm and sought to bring the lower arm within reach of the other end of the pouch, my first connection slipped, and I did also, for a moment on the raised platform upon which we were standing was frosty and was insecure, struggled with that bucking mail-crane for at least thirty minutes before I got the pouch hung. I was gasping when I finished.

"I returned to the depot to thaw myself out, and had become comfortably warm, when the hand-car with the section-men, arrived. They had letters to mail, and the boss wanted stamps. He drew out a pocket-book about the size of a suit-case, and from its depths extracted a dollar-bill, which looked pretty good to me. I immediately took possession of it, and then informed him that I was out of stamps, but would buy a supply with his nice, new dollar. I accepted their letters, subject to delay and ordered them out of the office. "I hated to think of another bout with the mail-crane, but it meant an opportunity to put the Langevin post-office on a solid business foundation, so I could not let it pass. I took down the pouch, made out a requisition for fifty-one cent and twenty-five two-cent stamps, placed it with the dollar in one of the impressive-looking envelopes bearing the legend, "O.H.M.S.", sealed it with my official seal, locked the pouch, and went after the mail-crane again braced for another battle.

"The train was due in fifteen minutes. I could see it coming. In my feverish haste to get the pouch hung I went through some high-class gymnastics, but it was of no use, a com-end dimension was the best I could do. The extension from the mail-car struck and hurled it about fifty feet out on the platform. The engine whistle turned loose with a couple of dismally short blasts, and the mail-train was gone.

"I went out and picked up the pouch, thinking it had been thrown from the train. I was pretty much disgusted to discover that it was the pouch I had put up. This delayed the game until Saturday, when the pouch was properly hung and finally started on its way.

"The stamps arrived in due time, and the section-boss came in the evening to have a settlement with me. I had made up my mind that I would discover large sales and make the dollar's worth last until pay-day. Accordingly, I passed out five twos to my Galician friend and assured him with my best Galician accent that I would slip him ten cents on pay-day, but he refused to close the deal on that basis at all.

"He wanted all the stamps, or something with his master's likeness engraved upon it, in lieu thereof. He could not, or would not, understand that I was broke. I yelled at him until I was blue in the face. I waved my arms and nearly choked in my efforts to explain the situation.

"He smiled blandly through it all, and kept repeating 'ninety cent' whenever I gave him a chance.

"In desperation, I hurried back to the store-room, grabbed my live-pound slab of bacon, thrust it into his hands, and shoved him out the door. It had been a close call, but the post-office was safe and breathed a sigh of relief.

"A few days later it became evident that my appointment as postmaster at Langevin awaited the approval of the high and mighty ones at Ottawa. Sealed envelopes in foot long, bearing 'O.H.M.S.' in large type and small, began to arrive. I was overwhelmed by the legal and impressive-looking papers which came my way. In their instructions they were veritable monuments of dignity. They demanded silently, it is true, but none the less insistently who I was and what were my qualifications for representing His Majesty's Service.

"Before such ponderous documents I felt my own insignificance. I set forth as humbly as might be my ancestral claims and such other excuses as I had for being alive.

"In a moment of extreme temerity I wrote a letter to Winnipeg, asking just how much of the painted green stuff I got for all this and was informed that once every three months after my appointment had been approved by Ottawa I got a pay-warrant for fifteen dollars would be issued. In case of their failure to accept me for a position of such responsibility, or should I resign before a pay-warrant was due, the government washed its hands of me and the full quarterly stipend reverted to my successor. If I thought that I could get any of it away from him, I was welcome to try my luck.

"I began to see the joke and to understand why my predecessor had been so carelessly free in transferring his responsibility. Though my own did not burden me very much after that, "O.H.M.S." still fills me with awe."

Calgary's Great Industrial Show

Visitors at the Calgary fair this year will be treated to one of the best arranged list of attractions which this exhibition has ever presented.

Musics by the 91st Highlanders Band of Hamilton and some of the best Western bands in addition to famous Titus Grand Opera Quartet will appeal to lovers of melody. Two driving horses, one of which takes a daring plunge into a tank of water with a lady on its back, will furnish a thrill which will be remembered. Ramona Ortiz does things on a slender steel wire that ordinary persons would not attempt on a six foot sidewalk. These are only a couple of the nine big acts which will be imported for the exhibition, and in addition there are several gorgeous spectacles which will be prepared by westerners.

The bombardment of Alexandria will be presented as the principal feature in a pyrotechnic display which will exceed anything ever attempted in the west at any fair. In addition to the fireworks there will be on one night of the fair to a spectacle of real horsemen in the center of the track catching fire, and a grand mount of Calgary's crack motor fire apparatus.

The racing programme provides $22,000 in prizes for saddle and harness horses, and taken as a whole those who spend their holidays in Calgary at fair time will find want for either entertainment or instruction.

Thos. Shipley represented Carlstadt at the gentleman's shirt waist dance at Suffield. It was a fair success.

Wonderfully fertile land is offered for sale by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at prices ranging from $11 to $30 per acre. There is no better agricultural land than this virgin Canadian soil. It is unsurpassed for all forms of agriculture, including grain growing, stock raising, dairying, fruit culture, vegetable growing, and general mixed farming! The lands are convenient to railways and markets, and are located in a land of low taxation and delightful climate.

TWENTY YEARS TO PAY

Under the Company's new policy, no land is sold to speculators, but only to those who will occupy and improve it. The terms of sale are now one-twentieth cash and the balance spread over twenty years, with interest at six per cent per annum.

ASSISTANCE TO FARMERS

Under certain conditions the Company will advance a loan of $2000 to new settlers to be used in erecting a house and barn, fencing the land, and sinking a well. This loan is repayable on the same terms as the purchase price.
